

"I have known Reva for more than 5 years. I have found Reva to be very passionate about people, HR, and more specifically on mentoring and coaching senior leaders. She is an extremely hands on person who gets into details on the underlying business, which is what I feel enables her to understand the nuances of what makes a business tick and the role of people - which in turn enables her, I feel, to be an effective HR person as well as a coach to senior leaders. She is also very energetic and always on the move. Given her work at Lafarge, a lot of times when I have called her, I always reached her in some remote part of the country comfortable and doing her job. I have also observed over the years that Reva never shies away from saying things how they are."
